About The University of Mississippi (UM)

Founded in 1848, The University of Mississippi, affectionately known as Ole Miss, is the flagship university for the State of Mississippi and caters to a diverse mix of students from the United States and around the world. Students looking for a traditional American experience can find it here with the university's large campus, beautiful buildings, and stunning landscapes. There is always something going on at the university, from football, basketball, and other sporting events, to performances at the Gertrude Ford Performing Arts Center and concerts in the Grove, to informative lectures and activities. Students can choose from a wide variety of subjects taught by experts in their field, and the renowned research centers and institutes offer a rich experience in a variety of fields. The university library is home to exceptional special collections and original documents relating to Mississippi's history and cultural footprint, such as the largest Blues Music Archive in the world and special collections of William Faulkner's writings. The University of Mississippi is situated in the quaint antebellum city of Oxford, which has a host of unique restaurants and special events throughout the year to keep students happy and entertained.

“To understand the world, you must first understand a place like Mississippi.”
– William Faulkner, Nobel Prize Laureate

Study Abroad

The Study Abroad Office assists incoming exchange and study abroad students while at the University of Mississippi. The welcoming staff works hard to offer academic and social support from the moment the students arrive in the country. Study Abroad staff are on hand to bring students to the safe and vibrant city of Oxford and move them into their accommodation. During Welcome Week, students meet their Global Ambassadors, attend orientation sessions, and enjoy traditional Southern food at the Welcome Dinner. Students can earn 12-19 hours of course work per semester, consisting of all academic course work or a combination of academic and intensive English classes if desired. Throughout the semester Study Abroad offers activities and excursions from visiting the National Civil Rights Museum and Graceland in Memphis to overnight excursions to New Orleans, Chicago, or Las Vegas. Global Engagement at UM takes Southern Hospitality seriously and student support, encouragement, and happiness is of utmost importance.

The IEP is a member of English USA, UCIEP, and accredited as part of The University of Mississippi Department of Modern Languages by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS).
